

OPEN CALL:

CASE STUDY PROPOSALS

Topic: Administrative Ethics

Abstracts due: January 15th

Public Integrity* is pleased to announce an open call for case study abstracts in applied administrative ethics in contemporary governance and public affairs for a guest-edited symposium:

Administrative ethics are prominent in the daily news cycle including reports of impropriety, malfeasance, inequity and other ethical violations in the public and nonprofit sectors. The Guest Editors of an upcoming symposium in Public Integrity adopt the view that an ethical approach to public affairs is like a muscle that needs to be exercised. This exercise is best accomplished through reflection, exposure to nuance and application to real world examples. Case studies that exemplify public sector ethical challenges in the modern context are therefore essential teaching tools for students and active practitioners at all levels. In support of this, Public Integrity is publishing a symposium that will provide a series of case studies in applied administrative ethics in contemporary governance and public affairs broadly. We encourage diverse submissions from students, practitioners and scholars alike that explore administrative ethics at the cutting edge of modern society. This call requires an initial submission of an abstract by January 15th 2020. Successful abstract authors will be invited to submit full manuscripts. Full manuscripts will be due in spring of 2020. Specific guidelines and deadlines will be provided with notification of acceptance.

Abstracts submission deadline: January 15th, 2020

Abstract guidelines:

1-2 paged proposal that includes:

400 words or less narrative describing the case

Brief discussion of the proposed decision-making dilemma

Brief discussion of the core theoretical frameworks to be exemplified through the case

Submission process/questions:
