Dear Colleagues:

Welcome to Denver and the mountainous West! We are delighted to hold ASPA's 79th Annual Conference in a location that perfectly symbolizes our theme: Mission Focused and Service First: Creating Innovative Solutions. As we focus this year's conference on public sector innovation, few cities are better positioned to host these discussions than Denver. Innovation surrounds us in this beautiful city, as do the many public administration issues familiar to all of us: inclusion, technology, ethics, military service, climate, public health and more.

Denver and this conference also are a most fitting place to highlight mission and service. Public administration continues to face unprecedented challenges as public employees manage larger and larger communities and programs with fewer and fewer resources. This year's 10 session tracks will provide academics and practitioners alike a wide range of take-away resources as we definitively bridge theory and practice. Sessions will provide opportunities not only for researchers and academicians to demonstrate their work, but also highlight ways practitioners can put that work to use.

In keeping with our theme, we will salute individuals who embody the ideals of those for whom our lectures our named, including Elliot Richardson, Donald Stone and Nesta M. Gallas. We will celebrate an ASPA core value—social equity—through the Gloria Hobson Nordin Social Equity Award and recognize career-long public service excellence through the National Public Service Awards. And, of course, we will honor the 2018 class of Founders' Fellows, the next generation of those serving the public good. We are grateful to those individuals and organizations that have generously supported our conference through sponsorships, contributions and other gifts. You have made this event possible.

Please join us for this year's Welcome Reception, where fun and networking will reign at the Downtown Denver Aquarium. We cannot promise swimming with the dolphins, but we can promise a relaxed atmosphere and plenty of aquatic wildlife to peruse as you connect with your friends and colleagues. University and group receptions will take place Sunday and Monday evenings, offering occasions for you to network with your peers and honor individuals for their accomplishments. Be sure to make the most of all of these opportunities. We thank those organizations that have sponsored receptions. Your support is significant and critical to our attendees' experience.

We want to recognize the leadership and guidance of the 2018 Conference Program Committee, led by Co-Chairs Tonya Neaves and Paul Danczyk. We owe them our deep appreciation for developing a content rich program that brings together scholarly and practitioner perspectives in our 170-plus concurrent sessions, plenary and presidential panels and other events. Thanks as well to J. Paul Blake for again serving as our master of ceremonies during the plenary sessions.

We extend a warm greeting to those who have made attending the ASPA Annual Conference an annual tradition. For those joining us for the first time, we know you will find this conference to be a welcoming place to forge new professional and personal relationships; we hope this is the first of many you will attend.

Thank you for attending the 2018 Annual Conference. More important, we are grateful to each of you for actively and meaningfully engaging in the work of our Society. We salute your dedication and commitment to the public service, in the United States and around the world.

March 9, 2018

Greetings,

As the Mayor of the City and County of Denver, I am pleased to extend a warm welcome to the American Society for Public Administration as you convene for your 2018 Annual Conference.

For almost 80 years, The American Society for Public Administration has played a vital role in advancing the practice of public administrators. With 8,000 valued practitioners, specialists, researchers and students, your organization has embraced innovation, addressed public service issues and promoted change across the country, always keeping the mission of government at the forefront of your challenging and fulfilling work.

This year's conference will gather more than 1,200 attendees to explore the current trends and information within the discipline. I am confident this event will provide your members and many others from the Denver area with an important forum to network, empower and innovate.

While in the Mile High City, I encourage you to explore the many attractions we have to offer, including: Denver's Union Station, the Denver Art Museum, the Denver Botanic Gardens, the History Colorado Center, the Molly Brown House Museum, the Denver Firefighter's Museum, the Butterfly Pavilion and much more. Take a brewery tour and sample some of the Denver food scene while you enjoy everything the city has to offer.

On behalf of the people of Denver, I extend best wishes to you for a remarkable event.

Respectfully,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "M. Hancock", with a long horizontal line extending to the right.

WELCOME

School of Public Affairs
UNIVERSITY OF COLORADO DENVER

ASPA Conference Attendees:

Welcome to Denver! The School of Public Affairs at the University of Colorado Denver is proud to serve as a Platinum Sponsor for this year's conference. We think you will find much to enjoy in Denver, including spectacular views of the Rocky Mountains and a temperate climate with about 300 days of sunshine per year.

"The Mile-High City" is home to nearly 700,000 people in a metropolitan area of 3.5 million inhabitants. The city has a thriving innovation economy, vibrant arts scene, dozens of great outdoor festivals and distinct neighborhoods, each offering a unique experience. Denver is clearly a city on the move. Recent accolades include:

- #1 Most Popular Destination for Millennials (Mayflower Company, 2017)
- #1 Midsize City for New College Graduates (American Institute for Economic Research, College Destinations Index, 2017)
- #1 Best Place for Business and Careers (Forbes, 2015 and 2016)
- #2 Best Place to Live (U.S. News & World Report, 2017)

Denver has the highest concentration of federal agencies outside Washington, D.C., a wide range of nonprofit organizations and a robust private sector. Our students enjoy many opportunities for fantastic internships and amazing careers.

The University of Colorado Denver has more than 15,000 students at the school's campus in downtown Denver. Our student body is very diverse: 44 percent of undergraduates are students of color and international students come from 41 different countries.

The School of Public Affairs is ranked 34th in the United States and is fully accredited by NASPAA. We offer a number of highly ranked programs, including environmental policy, nonprofit management, public management and city management. Thanks to our location in a progressive urban environment, faculty and students are able to work on crucial issues that affect the entire nation, such as education reform, fracking, legalized marijuana, urban sustainability and water policy.

We hope that you have a productive and energizing conference, and that you get the opportunity to explore the city we call home.

Sincerely,

PROGRAM CO-CHAIRS

Paul Danczyk

Paul Danczyk is director of executive education in Sacramento for the University of Southern California, Sol Price School of Public Policy. He is vice president of ASPA.

In his current capacity, Danczyk designs and presents in leadership and management programs—impacting national, state and local governmental and nonprofit organizations—teaches master’s level classes and is an executive coach. He cofounded and is lead architect of www.LeadershipEnergizes.com.

A returned Peace Corps volunteer, Danczyk earned his Ph.D. from the University of Pittsburgh, MPA from the University of Southern California and BS from Pennsylvania State University. He became a certified executive coach through the International Coaching Federation and was trained at the Hudson Institute for Coaching. He holds Harvard University’s Mediating Disputes certification.

Tonya T. Neaves

Tonya Neaves is the director of the Centers on the Public Service in George Mason University’s Schar School of Policy and Government. In this role, she maintains oversight of its day-to-day administrative operations, secures new research and development contracts and maintains a series of executive education programs. She serves as a faculty member in the Masters of Public Administration program and Coordinator for its Emergency Management and Homeland Security certificate. Neaves also serves as director of the Virginia Certified Public Manager® Program. Prior to joining Mason, Neaves was director of the Mississippi Public Safety Data Laboratory at the Social Science Research Center of Mississippi State University, where she remains a research fellow.

As a scholar, Neaves’ research portfolio has included securing contracts from the Virginia Department of Emergency Management, National Highway Safety Transportation Administration, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, Transportation Security Administration, and Federal Emergency Management Agency. To date, her research funding totals approximately $6 million. She has published in the Review of Policy Research, Journal of Emergency Management, Review of Public Personnel Management, and the American Journal of Public Health. She has co-authored book chapters in The Future of Disaster Management in the U.S.: Rethinking Legislation, Policy, and Finance, New Voices in the Old South: How Women and Minorities Influence Southern Politics. She also was an editor for the National Academy of Public Administration and American Society for Public Administration’s Memos to National Leaders.

Neaves holds a Ph.D. from Mississippi State, where she earned her MPPA. She has participated in the University of Michigan’s Interuniversity Consortium for Political and Social Research Summer Program in Quantitative Methods of Social Research, Duke University’s Dynamic Management and Leadership Programs, and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology’s Management and Innovation Program.

An active ASPA member, Neaves served as District II Representative and conference coordinator for the Northeast Conference on Public Administration. She is treasurer for the Section on Emergency and Crisis Management, an associate editor for the Journal of Urban Management and a board member for the Section on Public Performance and Management.

PROGRAM CO-CHAIRS AND HONORARY CO-CHAIRS

HONORARY CO-CHAIRS

Maria P. Aristigueta

Maria Aristigueta is director of the School of Public Policy and Administration, Charles P. Messick Chair of Public Administration, and senior policy fellow in the Institute of Public Administration at the University of Delaware. Her teaching and research interests are primarily related to public-sector management and include performance measurement, strategic planning, and organizational behavior. She has published numerous journal articles, book chapters and books, including Managing for Results in State Government, co-author of Managing Human Behavior in Public and Nonprofit Organizations, Managing and Measuring Performance in Public and Nonprofit Organizations, and Organizational Behavior. She has served as co-editor of the International Handbook of Practice-Based Performance Management. She is a fellow of the National Academy of Public Administration, an ASPA past president and member of the Executive Council of Network of Schools of Public Policy, Affairs and Administration. Her doctorate is from the University of Southern California.

Susan T. Gooden

Susan Tinsley Gooden is professor of public administration and policy at the L. Douglas Wilder School of Government and Public Affairs at Virginia Commonwealth University. She is immediate past president of ASPA, where she is a life member. A fellow of the National Academy of Public Administration, Gooden is an internationally recognized social equity scholar who has published extensively on the topic. Her most recent book is Race and Social Equity: A Nervous Area of Government. Her research has been funded by several organizations including MDRC, the Russell Sage Foundation, the Kellogg Foundation and the Manhattan Institute for Policy Research. Gooden received a Fulbright Specialist Award to Zayed University in Abu Dhabi, United Arab Emirates. She received her Ph.D. from the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs at Syracuse University.

Allan Rosenbaum

Allan Rosenbaum is professor of public administration and director of the Institute for Public Management and Community Service and the Center for Democracy and Good Governance at Florida International University (FIU). He came to FIU from the University of Maryland as dean of FIU's former School of Public Affairs and Services. Rosenbaum has worked in national, state and local government and carried out numerous international projects for the United Nations, U.S. Agency for International Development, World Bank, Swedish International Development Agency and governments around the world. He is a past president of both ASPA and the International Association of Schools and Institutes of Administration in Brussels, Belgium. Based on nomination by the secretary general of the United Nations and approval by its Economic and Social Council, he served as vice chair of the United Nations Committee of Experts on Public Administration. He is a fellow of the National Academy of Public Administration and recipient of various awards for the building of local democracy in Latin America.

INSPIRING LEADERS TO ADVANCE THE COMMON GOOD

Ranked among the country's top 10 professional public policy and planning schools, the Humphrey School of Public Affairs at the University of Minnesota is widely recognized for its role in examining public issues and shaping policy and planning at the local, state, national, and international levels.

- » Six Master's Degrees
- » PhD in Public Affairs
- » Six Certificates

INNOVATIVE, ONLINE TOOLS SHARE RESEARCH WITH PUBLIC

The Humphrey School has launched a new online collection of multimedia projects designed to share faculty's research findings with policymakers and community partners in engaging and accessible ways.

The collection, called Civios, currently features more than 30 podcasts, videos, and mixed media presentations on issues ranging from immigration to sex trafficking and climate change. New products are uploaded regularly, and then shared with practitioners and the broader public through social networks.

Check out the research at civios.umn.edu.

FACULTY NEWS

DANIEL CHENG

PhD, Indiana University

Yuan (Daniel) Cheng joins the Humphrey School as assistant professor this fall. He researches questions surrounding governance, government-nonprofit relationships, coproduction, and cross-sectoral collaboration, often with a focus on urban sustainability. Recent work examines the processes and consequences of nonprofits becoming important players in determining and financing public service provision.

JODI SANDFORT

Professor

Sandfort's work to improve the delivery of human services has experienced increased visibility through the Future Services Institute, which partners with state agencies, counties, tribal nations, and community organizations. The institute works to integrate systems, increase innovation, and address institutional racism through trainings and leadership development.

JERRY ZHAO

Associate Professor

Zhao directs the Institute for Urban & Regional Infrastructure Finance to advance research and engagement on strategic issues of infrastructure investment across urban and rural areas. The scope includes physical infrastructure (transportation, water, and utilities) as well as social infrastructure (education, public housing, and public safety).

ASPA SECTIONS

Membership in an ASPA Section is open to every member. Sections are a meaningful way to gain indispensable knowledge and forge lasting connections in specialized areas, meet peers and network. To add a Section to your membership, please email membership@aspanet.org.

Hiring Workshops

1:30 p.m. - 2:00 p.m. Mineral Hall C

Creating Partnerships and Networks for Career Development: How to Build an Effective Network

In this session we will cover the basic steps for creating a strategic and effective network. We will consider: target markets, criteria for network partnerships, prioritizing networking opportunities and agencies and paying it forward. There will time for discussion and, of course, a chance to network!

2:00 p.m. - 2:30 p.m. Mineral Hall C

Salary Negotiation: Should I Accept?

In this session we will discuss strategies for demonstrating your market value, total compensation analysis and related factors for job satisfaction. We will consider job functions, market demands, experience, location and work-life balance.

#ASPA2018

Please join us in congratulating these Maxwell School scholars who are participating in this year's annual conference of the American Society for Public Administration

Maxwell at ASPA

STONE LECTURER

Tina Nabatchi

Professor Nabatchi will deliver the Stone Lecture at this year's ASPA Conference. She studies public participation, collaborative governance, alternative dispute resolution, and challenges in public administration. Her federally funded grant project, which used public deliberation to better understand patient engagement and diagnostic error, was named national and international research project of the year by the International Association for Public Participation.

OTHER FACULTY

Julia Carboni

Carboni conducts research on collaboration to address social problems. She is a founding member of the Collective Giving Research Group and is engaged in a multi-year study on giving circles, supported by the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation and the Charles Stuart Mott Foundation.

Sabina Schnell

Schnell's research interests include transparency, corruption, good governance, and public sector reform in developing countries. Her recent article in Governance investigates why officials in high-corruption countries adopt transparency reforms though these might come back to haunt them.

DOCTORAL CANDIDATES

Suyeon Jo

Jo studies public and nonprofit management, collaboration, citizen participation, and volunteering. She has published in several journals, including American Review of Public Administration.

Samanta Lee

Lee's research interests include public management, governance, and development. Her current research focuses on perceptions of public participation by local health department officials.

Alvaro Salas

Salas researches collaborative governance, impact investment, and information communication technologies.

FOUNDERS FELLOW

Iuliia Shybalkina

Shybalkina has been selected as a 2018 ASPA Founders' Fellow. She studies public participation and transparency in public finance.

Session Sponsored By:

School of Public Affairs

Mayor Michael B. Hancock

Michael B. Hancock is Denver's 45th mayor. During his time in office, Mayor Hancock and his administration have eliminated the city's budget deficit, fostered a diverse economy and restored much needed services that were lost during the recession. With a drive toward increasing opportunity for every resident, he has prioritized innovative solutions to investing in the city's children and youth; increasing mobility options, affordable housing and services for the homeless; supporting economic mobility, entrepreneurs and small businesses; and making government work smarter for residents. Prior to becoming mayor, he served on the Denver City Council for eight years and was president of the Metro Denver Urban League.

SUNDAY, MARCH 11, 2018

1:30 p.m. – 3:00 p.m.

Centennial D

Lieutenant Governor Donna Lynne

Donna Lynne, DrPH, was sworn in as Colorado's 49th lieutenant governor and chief operating officer. She is widely respected as both a leader in the private sector and an expert in the health field. She has spent 20 years as a senior leader of multibillion-dollar health care companies and spent 20 years before that serving in multiple roles in New York City government. Dr. Lynne has led efforts to address the issues of health care affordability, accessibility and quality. She launched multiple initiatives to increase accountability and transparency in government and make government services more efficient and effective.

Janice Lachance

An accomplished executive and governance expert, 2017-2018 ASPA President Janice Lachance is executive vice president for strategic and organizational excellence at AGU—the American Geophysical Union. A dedicated volunteer and trusted advisor, she is a fellow of the National Academy of Public Administration, a fellow of the American Society of Association Executives (ASAE) and a member of the board of directors of the Wise Giving Alliance.

Prior to her work in not-for-profit enterprises, Lachance was nominated by President William Clinton and unanimously confirmed by the U.S. Senate as director of the U.S. Office of Personnel Management (OPM). She served as chair of the National Labor-Management Partnership Council, member of the President's Management Council and member of the President's Council on the 2000 Presidential Transition. Prior to becoming director, she served as OPM's director of communications and policy, chief of staff and deputy director.

Lachance is credited with numerous achievements at OPM, including reformulating the agency's mission and strategy and re-engineering its 3,700-employee organizational structure and culture; expanding the Family and Medical Leave Act to permit the use of sick leave to care for a newborn, adopted child or ailing family member; and establishing USAJOBS.GOV.

For more than 10 years, Lachance was CEO of the Special Libraries Association, leading the global association of 8,000 librarians and information professionals and their business partners.

Lachance graduated from Manhattanville College and earned her JD from Tulane University.

Valerie Lemmie

Valerie Lemmie joined the Charles F. Kettering Foundation as director of exploratory research in May 2014. Her current role enables her to devote attention to a longstanding research interest in political theory and practice, continuing work begun in 2005 when she was a scholar-in-residence at the foundation. At that time, she published essays and articles on governance and public policy, especially regarding the importance of public administrators aligning professional practices with citizens' expectations. Currently, she identifies research opportunities and oversees studies and learning exchanges exploring the fundamental question of the foundation: how to make democracy work as it should.

An adept leader with more than 35 years of managerial experience in solving complex and controversial problems, Lemmie served as acting chief of staff and district director for Congressman Mike Turner (Ohio's 10th District); commissioner on the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio; and city manager for the cities of Cincinnati and Dayton, Ohio and Petersburg, Virginia. She also served as adjunct professor at the University of Dayton and Howard University and was a fellow at the Center for Municipal Management, George Washington University. In addition to her work in the United States, she has extensive experience internationally, working with public officials in developing countries in Africa, Eastern Europe and Asia.

Lemmie has joined the Public Administration Review (PAR) editorial board and is a member of the board of directors for the National Civic League, Dayton History, Initiatives of Change and the Deliberative Democracy Consortium. She is former board chair of the National Academy of Public Administration.

Lemmie received her BA from the University of Missouri and her MA from Washington University.

NESTA M. GALLAS LECTURE

MONDAY, MARCH 12, 2018

10:00 a.m. - 11:30 a.m.

Centennial D

Session Supported By:

Walter Shaub, Jr.

For more than 20 years, Walter Shaub, Jr., former director of the U.S. Office of Government Ethics (OGE) and currently senior director of ethics at the Campaign Legal Center, has provided a standard of public service excellence and promoted the practice of ethics in governance.

His achievements have garnered him attention in the national media spotlight in the past year as he has continued to strenuously voice the value of ethical governance.

A supervisory attorney at OGE in the early 2000s, Shaub led a team of attorneys, financial analysts and ethics officials who reviewed financial disclosure reports of presidential nominees. He transformed the nominee program and developed a 75-page guide for drafting ethics agreements that reduced processing times and produced better outcomes in resolving conflicts of interest. Recognized for his leadership, he became OGE's deputy general counsel, where he advanced President Obama's 2008-2009 transition effort by leading a cross-divisional team in effectively resolving potential conflicts of interest for nearly 800 presidential, Senate-confirmed positions and senior White House positions.

President Obama appointed Shaub as OGE director in January 2013; he served in that capacity until July 2017. During his tenure as director, he modernized regulations, advised agencies, issued legal and program guidance, expanded ethics education, conserved taxpayer resources and built a strong performance structure. He oversaw an ethics program composed of 4,500 agency ethics officials who prevented conflicts of interest on the part of 2.7 million civilian federal employees, plus officers in uniform—all on a $16 million budget.

Following a widely reported speech in 2017 in which Shaub called on President Trump for full divestiture of his financial interests, CNN reported, "Lofty speeches about patriotic duty are normally the bailiwick of three lawmakers on Capitol Hill, not wonky government lawyers who work behind the scenes and comb through reams of paperwork ..." One ethics expert called the speech a "great act of courage;" another called it "extraordinary."

In July 2017, Shaub resigned as director and began his current position at the Campaign Legal Center, stating that working on the outside of the administration would enable him to reform and strengthen existing federal government ethics programs.

Prior to his experience at OGE, Shaub worked as an attorney with the law firm Shaw, Bransford, Veilleux and Roth, P.C., where he focused on federal employment law, representing federal employees, primarily Senior Executive Service members, managers and law enforcement officials. He also held a number of staff attorney positions at a variety of government agencies, including the Central Office of the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs (VA), the Office of General Counsel of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services and the VA's Baltimore-Washington Regional Counsel's office.

Shaub earned his BA from James Madison University and his JD from the American University Washington College of Law.

The Nesta M. Gallas Award for Exemplary Professionalism in Public Service has been established to honor the lifetime achievements of a dedicated public servant. Dr. Gallas was a consummate professional and path breaker. She was the first woman to serve as ASPA's national president. As the personnel director in Honolulu, she fought for inclusion. She was an international expert in public administration and an academic leader who complemented theoretical observations with experiential insights. The purpose of the award is to continue to advance the core values that Nesta M. Gallas elegantly exemplified.

Tina Nabatchi

Tina Nabatchi is associate professor of public administration and international affairs and a faculty research associate at the Program for the Advancement of Research on Conflict and Collaboration at Syracuse University's Maxwell School. Her research focuses on citizen participation, collaborative governance, conflict resolution and challenges in public administration.

Prior to joining the Maxwell School, Nabatchi was research coordinator for the Indiana Conflict Resolution Institute at Indiana University—Bloomington, where she was responsible for the design, implementation, analysis and publication of various research projects. In this capacity, she provided consultations about, and evaluations of, alternative dispute resolution in several federal agencies, including the U.S. Department of Justice, Postal Service, National Institutes of Health, Department of Agriculture and U.S. Institute for Environmental Conflict Resolution.

Nabatchi's research has been published in numerous journals, including the Journal of Public Administration

Research and Theory, Public Administration Review, American Review of Public Administration, National Civic Review and Conflict Resolution Quarterly. She has several award winning articles, among them: "Addressing the Citizenship and Democratic Deficits: Exploring the Potential of Deliberative Democracy for Public Administration," "Evaluating the Productivity of Collaborative Governance Regimes: A Performance Matrix" and "The New Governance: Practices and Processes for Stakeholder and Citizen Participation in the Work of Government."

In addition to numerous book chapters, monographs and white papers, Nabatchi is lead editor of Democracy in Motion: Evaluating the Practice and Impact of Deliberative Civic Engagement (Oxford University Press, 2012). She recently published two books: Public Participation for 21st Century Democracy with Matt Leighninger (Jossey-Bass, 2015) and Collaborative Governance Regimes with Kirk Emerson (Georgetown University Press, 2015).

Established in 1995 by the ASPA Endowment, the Donald C. Stone Lecture honors the memory of ASPA's charter member and past president. Lecturers reflect Stone's varied interests and contributions to public service and public administration.

Jane Pisano

Jane Pisano is professor in the University of Southern California (USC) Sol Price School of Public Policy. She has been on the school's faculty since 1991. Her areas of expertise include nonprofit leadership and management, public administration, public-private partnerships and civic engagement.

Pisano served as president and director of the Natural History Museum of Los Angeles County from 2001 to 2015. Her top priorities were to focus on the museum visitor's experience by transforming the institution into a 21st century destination. This included seismic strengthening and renovations to the buildings, modern light-filled exhibits, new amenities, five new permanent exhibitions and outdoor Nature Gardens. In all, the transformation improved more than 60 percent of its interior public space and doubled its programming space. She supported innovative programming, strengthened the scientific program and built partnerships that positioned the museum as a hub for public dialogue. A public-private partnership, she and her team raised more than $220 million in public and private funds.

Pisano joined USC in 1991 as dean of the School of Public Administration. During her nearly seven-year tenure, she led a major effort to strengthen the school academically at both the graduate and undergraduate levels. Annual gifts and grants more than doubled (to $3.6 million) and the endowment increased four-fold (to $31 million).

In 1994, Pisano was appointed vice president of external relations at the university and was promoted to senior vice president in 1998. In this role, she not only worked with the USC chief management team but also was responsible for establishing and maintaining USC's community, public, government and alumni relations. With four other senior officers, she assisted the university president in all significant decisions. In addition, she developed a community outreach program that was nationally recognized when USC was named Time magazine College of the Year in 2000. She conceptualized and implemented the Good Neighbors campaign to fund university/neighborhood partnerships for neighborhood improvement. She developed and led USC's participation with the Family of Five Schools in the University Park/Exposition Park neighborhood, as well as with two schools in the Health Sciences neighborhood, and helped organize the Kid Watch program.

Pisano was president of Los Angeles 200 and The 2000 Partnership, civic organizations working to improve the quality of life in Southern California. She served on the faculty of Georgetown University's School of Foreign Service and was a White House fellow on the National Security Council staff. She earned MA and Ph.D. degrees in international relations from the Johns Hopkins University School of Advanced International Studies, and a BA from Stanford University.

MODERATOR

Jefferson Davis Howell, Jr.

J.D. “Beak” Howell is a senior research fellow with the Lyndon B. Johnson School for Public Affairs, the University of Texas at Austin. He is teaching courses on leadership, as well as participating in leadership training activities sponsored by the Governor’s Executive Development Program.

Howell’s qualification for teaching leadership is based on a lifetime of leadership challenges and responsibilities. This includes 37 years as an Officer of Marines in which he commanded at all levels, including leading infantry platoons of approximately 50 Marines, a 250 Marine fighter/attack squadron, a 5,000 person aircraft group, a 15,000 person aircraft wing and, ultimately, a Marine force of more than 80,000 Marines and Sailors.

After retiring from the Marine Corps in 1998, Howell continued accepting leadership challenges while managing a 500 person engineering contract for Science Applications International Corporation, followed in 2002 by returning to government service and becoming the center director for NASA’s Lyndon B. Johnson Space Center in Houston. He held that position for more than three years before coming to the University of Texas.

Howell has received numerous awards and decorations in recognition for his service with the Marines and NASA. In 2004, he was named the Outstanding Graduate of the University of Texas Graduate School.

PANELISTS

Bobby Inman

Admiral Bobby Inman graduated from the University of Texas at Austin in 1950, and from the National War College in 1972. He became an adjunct professor at the University of Texas at Austin in 1987. He was appointed as a tenured professor holding the Lyndon B. Johnson Centennial Chair in National Policy in August 2001. He served as interim dean of the LBJ School of Public Affairs from January to December 2005 and again from January 2009 to March 2010.

Inman served in the U.S. Navy from November 1951 to July 1982 when he retired with the permanent rank of Admiral. While on active duty, he served as director of naval intelligence, vice director of the Defense Intelligence Agency, director of the National Security Agency and deputy director of Central Intelligence. After retirement from the Navy, he was chairman and chief executive officer of the Microelectronics and Computer Technology Corporation in Austin, Texas for four years and chairman, president and CEO of Westmark Systems, Inc., a privately owned electronics industry holding company for three years. He also served as chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas from 1987-1990.

Inman’s primary business activity since 1990 has been investing in start-up technology companies, where he is a managing director of Gefinor Ventures and of Limestone Capital Advisors. He serves as a trustee of the California Institute of Technology. He is an elected Fellow of the National Academy of Public Administration.

William McRaven

University of Texas (UT) System Chancellor William H. McRaven, a retired U.S. Navy four-star admiral, leads one of the nation’s largest and most respected systems of higher education. As the chief executive officer of the UT System, the Chancellor oversees 14 institutions that educate 217,000 students and employ 20,000 faculty and more than 70,000 health care professionals, researchers and staff.

Since he became chancellor in January 2015, McRaven has recommitted the UT System and its institutions to improving the lives of Texans and people all over the world through education, research and health care.

Prior to becoming chancellor, McRaven was the commander of U.S. Special Operations Command, during which time he led a force of 69,000 men and women and was responsible for conducting counter-terrorism operations worldwide. McRaven also is a recognized national authority on U.S. foreign policy and has advised Presidents George W. Bush and Barack Obama and other U.S. leaders on defense issues. His book, Spec Ops: Case Studies in Special Operations Warfare: Theory and Practice, published in several languages, is considered a fundamental text on special operations strategy.

McRaven’s military legacy goes beyond strategy and warfare. As commander of U.S. Special Operations Command, McRaven spearheaded the creation of the

PRESIDENTIAL PANELS

Preservation of the Force & Family initiative to ensure the mental, spiritual and physical well-being of those who serve, as well as their families.

McRaven graduated from the University of Texas at Austin in 1977 with a degree in journalism and received his master's degree from the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey in 1991. In 2012, the Texas Exes honored McRaven with a Distinguished Alumnus Award.

Mark A. Welsh, III

General Mark A. Welsh, III became dean of the Bush School of Government and Public Service at Texas A&M University on Aug. 15, 2016 after a 40-year career in the U.S. Air Force. Welsh, who was born in San Antonio, Texas, earned a BS from the U.S. Air Force Academy, an MS in computer resource management from Webster University and graduated from the Army Command and General Staff College, the Air War College and the National War College. He was a fellow of Seminar XXI at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, a fellow of the National Security Studies Program of Syracuse University and Johns Hopkins University, a fellow of Ukrainian Security Studies at the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University, a fellow of the Pinnacle Course of the National Defense University and a graduate of the General Manager Program at the Harvard Business School. During his long military career, he received numerous awards and decorations, including multiple awards of the Defense Distinguished Service Medal, Distinguished Service Medal and the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Welsh became the 20th Chief of Staff of the Air Force in August 2012, responsible for the organization, training and equipping of 664,000 active-duty, Guard, Reserve and civilian forces serving in the United States and overseas. As a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, he and other service chiefs functioned as military advisers to the Secretary of Defense, National Security Council and the President. During his Air Force career, he also served as commander of U.S. Air Forces in Europe and Africa, commander of NATO's Air Command, associate director of military affairs at the Central Intelligence Agency and Commandant of the United States Air Force Academy.

Janice Lachance

An accomplished executive and governance expert, 2017-2018 ASPA President Janice R. Lachance is executive vice president for strategic and organizational excellence at AGU—the American Geophysical Union, a community of 60,000 Earth and space scientists located in more than 100 countries around the world. A dedicated volunteer and trusted advisor, she is a fellow of the National Academy of Public Administration where she has served on its Board of Directors, a fellow of the American Society of Association Executives (ASAE) and a member of the board of directors of the Wise Giving Alliance.

Prior to her work in not-for-profit enterprises, Lachance was nominated by President William Clinton and unanimously confirmed by the U.S. Senate as the Cabinet-ranked director of the U.S. Office of Personnel Management, the federal government's independent human resources agency responsible for all policy and programs affecting the 2.1 million members of the nation's civil service. She served as chair of the National Labor-Management Partnership Council, member of the President's Management Council and member of the President's Council on the 2000 Presidential Transition. Prior to becoming director, she served as OPM's director of communications and policy, chief of staff and deputy director.

Lachance is credited with numerous seminal achievements at OPM, including reformulating the agency's mission and strategy and reengineering its 3,700-employee organizational structure and culture; expanding the Family and Medical Leave Act to permit the use of sick leave to care for a newborn, adopted child or ailing family member; instituting affordable long-term care insurance for federal employees, members of the armed services and retirees; and establishing USAJOBS.GOV, the federal government's official source for federal job listings and employment opportunity information.

Formerly a consultant focused on executive transitions and organizational transformations, Lachance previously served as interim executive director of the American Library Association's Washington Office; interim president of the Better Business Bureau Institute for Marketplace Trust; and interim president and CEO of the Society of Consumer Affairs Professionals International. For more than 10 years, she was CEO of the Special Libraries Association, leading the global association of 8,000 librarians and information professionals and their business partners located in 75 countries.

Born and raised in Biddeford, ME, Lachance graduated from Manhattanville College and earned her JD from Tulane University. She is admitted to practice law in the State of Maine, the District of Columbia and the United States Supreme Court.

This session will look at social equity, race and ethnicity, LGBTQIA and more in the context of training you to be an ally for social equity, diversity and inclusion in your university or workplace. Session leaders also will look at addressing sexual harassment and assault in the workplace, recruiting and retaining a diverse and inclusive workforce and other related issues.

PRESIDENTIAL PANELS

Bergrud earned his BA from the University of Kansas and an MPA from Park University. He also completed the Council of Independent Colleges' Senior Leadership Academy and the Greater Kansas City Chamber of Commerce's Centurions Leadership Program.

Dan Blair

Dan G. Blair has a proven track record in changing and transforming public- and private-sector organizations and is an internationally recognized leader in the fields of public affairs, management and organizational leadership. He has extensive experience working with complex organizations and managing staffs ranging from 35 to more than 6,500. Currently, he is senior counsellor and fellow at the Bi-Partisan Policy Center, a think tank that promotes bi-partisan solutions to critical policy challenges facing the nation. He leads a bi-partisan task force of former members of Congress, senior administration officials, inspectors general and senior congressional staff to examine and recommend improvements in the ways that Congress utilizes inspectors general.

From 2011 to 2017, Blair led the National Academy of Public Administration, a congressionally chartered think tank and consultancy, in advising the public and private sectors on issues of governance, transformation, change management and human capital. He worked collaboratively with internal and external stakeholders to rebuild the organization's reputation, reduced operating expenses by half and generated positive margins the last two years of his tenure. He raised the Academy's public profile and advised the executive and legislative branches on ethics, presidential transition, collaboration and organizational transformation. His efforts led to congressional action in amending federal ethics and disclosure laws.

The president has twice appointed Blair to lead executive branch agencies. As U.S. Office of Personnel Management deputy director (2001-2006) and acting director (2005), he directed major civil service and human capital reform efforts at the Department of Homeland Security and the Department of Defense. In 2006, the president named him to lead the newly created Postal Regulatory Commission, charging him with creating a new regulatory structure for the U.S. Postal Service.

Blair received his bachelor's degree in journalism and JD from the University of Missouri—Columbia. He is a member of the Missouri and D.C. bars.

Timothy Conlan

Tim Conlan is university professor of government at George Mason University and a fellow of the National Academy of Public Administration. He previously served as a senior analyst with the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations and as deputy staff director of the Senate Subcommittee on Intergovernmental Relations. His research on federalism and public policy has been published in Public Administration Review, State and Local Government Review, Publius, Political Science Quarterly and other journals. His books include Governing Under Stress: The Implementation of Obama's Economic Stimulus Program, Pathways of Power: The Dynamics of National Policy Making and From New Federalism to Devolution: Twenty-five Years of Intergovernmental Reform.

Conlan has been honored with several awards in political science and public administration, including the Daniel J. Elazar Distinguished Federalism Scholar Award, Donald C. Stone Scholar Award for lifetime contributions to the fields of intergovernmental relations and management, Deil Wright Award for Best Paper on Federalism and Intergovernmental Relations and Martha Derthick Award for the best book on federalism and intergovernmental Relations. He received his Ph.D. in government from Harvard University in 1982.

PANELISTS

Julia Richman

Julia Richman is chief innovation and analytics officer and interim chief information officer for the City of Boulder. In this role, she acts as a city-wide partner to improve overall organizational capacity. She works to achieve city goals through programs and initiatives focused on high-performance government, data-driven decisionmaking, operational effectiveness and efficiency and disruptive technology. Prior to working for the city, she spent 10 years at Deloitte Consulting, leading projects that advanced service and business operations strategies for public-sector clients across the nation. Richman is a Colorado native and community leader. She is a 2018 Colorado Governors fellow and a graduate of Leadership Denver and the Colorado Institute for Leadership Training. She is a mentor for Colorado-based Greenhouse Scholars and serves as part of the executive teams for both the Colfax Marathon and Groundwork Denver boards of directors. She has an MPP from the University of Chicago and a BA from Dartmouth College. She is an avid endurance athlete in hot pursuit of a three-hour marathon.

Emily Silverman

Emily Silverman is the lead on Denver's Smart City work. Previously, she served as transportation planner for the City of Denver and the Colorado Department of Transportation. She holds a MURP degree from CU Denver and an undergraduate degree from Washington University.

PRESIDENTIAL PANELS

John Tolva

John Tolva is a principal at CityFi. He formerly was the president of PositivEnergy Practice, an urban systems engineering firm based on data-driven planning for new building design, retrofits and urban design. His career has focused on developing and applying technology to improve the urban environment. From 2011-2013 he was chief technology officer for the City of Chicago, leveraging technology to streamline public services through more efficient data-sharing, digital communications and next-generation infrastructure. He led development of “The City of Chicago Technology Plan,” an initiative that sets forth a series of public-private strategies to accelerate economic growth, build educated and digitally engaged communities and workforces, improve government services and reduce costs through technology. In 2012, the White House recognized Tolva as a “Champion of Change.” Prior to joining the City, he was director of citizenship and technology at IBM Corp, where he worked on the firm’s “Smarter Cities” initiative, advising cities how to incorporate data analytics into planning and operations. Tolva led the City Forward project, the first global aggregator and visualizer of urban data sets.

Her teaching and research interests are primarily related to public-sector management and include performance measurement, strategic planning, and organizational behavior. She has published numerous journal articles, book chapters and books, including Managing for Results in State Government, co-author of Managing Human Behavior in Public and Nonprofit Organizations, Managing and Measuring Performance in Public and Nonprofit Organizations, and Organizational Behavior. She has served as co-editor of the International Handbook of Practice-Based Performance Management. She is a fellow of the National Academy of Public Administration, an ASPA past president and member of the Executive Council of Network of Schools of Public Policy, Affairs and Administration. Her doctorate is from the University of Southern California.

DISCUSSANT

John Kamensky

John Kamensky is senior fellow with the IBM Center for The Business of Government. During 24 years of public service, he had a significant role in helping pioneer the federal government’s performance and results orientation. He is passionate about creating a government that is results oriented, performance based, customer focused and collaborative in nature.

Kamensky served for eight years as deputy director of Vice President Al Gore’s National Partnership for Reinventing Government. Prior to that time, he worked at the Government Accountability Office for 16 years where he played a key role in the development and passage of the Government Performance and Results Act. He has edited or co-authored eight books and writes and speaks extensively on performance management and government reform. He is involved in the IBM Center’s work on envisioning the future of government in 2040, which includes evidence-based decisionmaking. A fellow of the National Academy of Public Administration, he received a master’s in public affairs from the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs at the University of Texas at Austin.

Nick Hart

Nick Hart is director of the Bi-Partisan Policy Commission’s (BPC) Evidence-Based Policymaking Initiative. Prior to joining BPC, he worked in the federal government for nearly a decade, most recently as policy and research director for the U.S. Commission on Evidence-Based Policymaking. In that capacity, he oversaw the commission’s policy and research support team and led the drafting process for “The Promise of Evidence-Based Policymaking,” the commission’s final report and recommendations presented to the Congress and the president in September 2017.

PRESIDENTIAL PANELS

Hart has worked on a wide range of issues including social security, disability, anti-poverty, environmental, energy, economic development and criminal justice policies. He worked at the U.S. Office of Management and Budget as senior analyst and special assistant, where he contributed to writing executive branch budget proposals and encouraged increased capacity for evidence-based practices across government.

Hart earned a doctorate from The George Washington University's Trachtenberg School of Public Policy and Public Administration, specializing in program evaluation. He also holds an MS from Indiana University and a BS from Truman State University.

Robert Shea

Robert Shea is a principal at Grant Thornton, where he leads the Public Sector Strategy Practice and strategic and performance management engagements for federal, state and local government agencies. He was appointed to the Commission on Evidence-Based Policymaking, which developed recommendations to improve access to and use of evidence in policymaking.

Prior to joining Grant Thornton, Shea served with the U.S. Office of Management and Budget (OMB) as associate director for administration and government performance. In addition to managing OMB's internal operations, he led the President's Performance Improvement Initiative, administered the Program Assessment Rating Tool, advised on government human capital policy and led interagency collaborations in the areas of food safety and implementation of the Federal Funding Accountability and Transparency Act.

Shea served as counsel to the Senate Committee on Governmental Affairs where, in addition to general oversight of executive branch management, he advised committee leadership on the status of implementation of the statutory framework for performance-based government, including the Government Performance and Results Act and the Chief Financial Officers Act. He was legislative director for Congressman Pete Sessions (TX) from 1997 to 1999.

WELCOME RECEPTION

SATURDAY, MARCH 10, 2018

6:30 p.m. - 8:00 p.m.

Downtown Denver Aquarium
700 Water St • Denver, CO 80211

Opened in 2005, this entertainment and dining complex features an aquarium boasting more than one million gallons of underwater exhibits that highlight fascinating ecosystems around the world. Downtown Aquarium houses more than 500 species of animals, the interactive Stingray Reef touch tank, Dive Lounge and amusements for the entire family.

Exhibits include North America, In the Desert, Under the Sea, At the Wharf, The Rainforest, Sunken Temple, Shipwreck, at the Beach and the 4-D Theater. Each one features animals that call these habitats home, showcasing their various environmental adaptations.

ASPA's event will feature our own banquet space with special hors d'oeuvres, snacks, drinks and plenty of space for networking. Attendees will receive full access to the Aquarium to explore on their own—from sharks to tropical fish to exotic wildlife! This evening event is sure to provide plenty of fun while you connect with your colleagues.

The Downtown Denver Aquarium is approximately two miles from the Hyatt Regency Denver. There is no direct public transportation to the venue, though cabs are available. Shuttles will be available to take attendees round trip between the Hyatt and the Aquarium, beginning at 5:45 p.m. Shuttles will depart from the hotel lobby. The last shuttle will depart the Aquarium to return guests to the hotel at 8:45 p.m. Guests wishing to enjoy the Aquarium until it closes at 10 p.m. will need to make arrangements to provide their own transportation back to the hotel at that time. Appropriate attire, including well-soled shoes, is required.

STUDENT & NEW PROFESSIONAL SUMMIT

FRIDAY, MARCH 9, 2018

8:00 a.m. - 6:00 p.m.

Centennial F

This annual event focuses on topics that are critical to students and new professionals: building a resume or CV, getting a job, making tenure and getting published. Whether you are planning for a practitioner career or an academic one, you will want to be at the summit to learn from experts in the field while networking with colleagues and leading public administrators. Not all sessions are meant for all attendees; please note the parentheses that mark academia vs. practitioner audience. That said, all are welcome throughout the day.

Sponsored By:

UNIVERSITY OF COLORADO
COLORADO SPRINGS

8:00 a.m. - 8:30 a.m.

Introductions, Ice Breakers, Student Awards, ASPA Updates

We will kick off the 2018 Student and New Professional Summit with some time to introduce ourselves and get to know each other before we spend the day taking a deep dive into our career aspirations and how to get there. Ice breakers will be involved!

PRESENTER

Andrea Headley

Doctoral Student, Florida International University,
Miami, FL

8:30 a.m. - 9:15 a.m.

The Choice is Yours: Practice vs. Academia?

The first step in your career is to determine which path you will take. While most doctoral candidates are encouraged toward an academic career, it is not right for everyone. Jos Raadschelders will set the stage for the big decisions on your horizon, as well as the content you will hear throughout the rest of this day.

PRESENTER

Jos C.N. Raadschelders

Professor, Ohio State University, Columbus, OH

9:15 a.m. - 10:00 a.m.

Engaging, Not Explaining: Improving Professional and Research Presentations for Your Audience

Polished presentations mean more than just slick graphics, transitions and embedded video. They mean presenting the right data for the right audience, using the right vocabulary. Know your room and cater to it— you will be far more successful! Our presenter will walk you through the finer points of crafting an excellent PowerPoint, including the critical rules that must be followed to ensure your presentation is compelling as well as on-message. Make the most of this session so your first on-the-job presentations wow your audience.

PRESENTER

Stephanie Dolamore

Research Analyst, University of Baltimore, College Park, MD

10:15 a.m. - 11:00 a.m.

Building Your Research Portfolio: The Science Behind Publishing in Academia (Academia)

You may have an excellent research paper but that does not mean getting it published will be easy. The first step is having excellent academic mentors supporting your efforts and giving you pointers along the way. Yet there is more to this process. Learn about the importance of choosing the right publications, knowing what editors are looking for, bouncing back from the R&R process, transforming papers into books and more.

Mission Focused and Service First: Creating Innovative Solutions

STUDENT & NEW PROFESSIONAL SUMMIT

PRESENTERS:

R. Paul Battaglio

Professor and MPA Director, University of Texas at Dallas and Co-Editor-in-Chief, Public Administration Review, Richardson, TX

Kirk Emerson

Editor, Perspectives on Public Management and Governance and Professor, University of Arizona, Tucson, AZ

11:00 a.m. - 11:45 a.m.

After You Get the Job: Transitioning from "Dissertation Candidate" to "Assistant Professor" (Academia)

There is a world of difference between being a dissertation candidate and an assistant professor. It is critical that you get out of the student mindset and mentally push yourself into the professor role. While many of your responsibilities may feel similar or the same as they were before, it is important that you treat them differently. Two new assistant professors—who were in your shoes not long ago!—will share their lessons learned and tips for success.

PRESENTERS

Sebawit Bishu

Assistant Professor, University of Colorado Denver, Denver, CO

Angela Kline

Assistant Professor, Bowie State University, Bowie, MD

11:45 a.m. - 12:30 p.m.

Crafting CVs (Academia)

Learn from our presenter as he covers the finer points of crafting an academic CV. You will learn the differences between a CV and a resume, the types of publications that are important, how long is too long, the best formatting for this kind of information and more. Take lots of notes: You will want to remember everything Jeremy has to share!

PRESENTER:

Jeremy L. Hall

Professor and MPA Director, University of Central Florida and Co-Editor-in-Chief, Public Administration Review, Orlando, Florida

12:45 p.m. - 1:30 p.m.

Lunch Break and Workshop: Effective Writing

We will "lunch and learn" as our speaker explains two tools students can use to write excellent research papers. The first, the Step by Step notebook method, transforms writing a paper into managing a project. Student scholars will learn how to manage their time, materials and ideas. The project management system also helps address many writer's block issues. The second tool, the conceptual framework, is designed to ensure empirical research is coherent across the research question, scholarly literature, theory, methods and results. These techniques have led to award-winning student papers cited by public policy foundations, academic journals and international organizations.

PRESENTER:

Patricia Shields

Professor, Texas State University, San Marcos, TX

1:45 p.m. - 2:30 p.m.

Will Your Resume Get You the Job? (Practitioner)

Your resume is important. It introduces you to a potential employer, sells your skills and attributes and hopefully gets you to the next step. But there are a number of considerations to take into account when constructing it: what should be on it, what should not, how long it should be. This session will help you learn how to put together your perfect resume, learn the rights and wrongs and keep you from making big mistakes.

William P. Shields, Jr.

Executive Director, ASPA and Adjunct Professor, American University, Washington, DC

STUDENT & NEW PROFESSIONAL SUMMIT

2:30 p.m. - 3:15 p.m.

Making a Direct Impact: State and Local Jobs (Practitioner)

Now that you have your MPA, how do you get started in public service? As is the case with getting any job, it is not as easy as it looks. Where do most state and local servants begin their careers and how do you get your foot in the door? Our panelists will talk about their career trajectories, how they have used their networks for success and lessons they have learned in public service.

PRESENTERS

Mark Deven

City Manager, Arvada, CO

Michael King

Assistant Director, Richland County Emergency Services, Columbia, SC

3:15 p.m. - 4:00 p.m.

Navigating the Federal Hiring Process (Practitioner)

If you are planning to pursue a practitioner career, make sure you are in the audience for this session. There are millions of federal jobs, many of which are open to young graduates, but first you have to get through the interview process. Our presenter will take you beyond USAJobs.gov to master the art of getting your application through the door, to the interview and beyond.

PRESENTER

Leigh Epsy

Doctoral Student, University of Colorado Denver, Lakewood, CO

4:00 p.m. - 6:00 p.m.

L. Frances Liddell Student Policy Debate

This workshop is an adjudicated competitive policy debate. It affords young professionals, undergraduates and graduate students an opportunity to present and defend positions on current public policy issues. Participants enhance communication skills, including their manner of delivery and persuasion. It also serves to assist in embracing those attributes and qualities desired of future public administrators: speaking competently and confidently.

NATIONAL PUBLIC SERVICE AWARDS

SATURDAY, MARCH 10, 2018

10:45 a.m. - 12:15 p.m.

Centennial E

Co-sponsored by ASPA and the National Academy of Public Administration, the National Public Service Awards honor individuals who make outstanding contributions and whose accomplishments are models of exemplary public service for those dedicated to the public good—now and in the future.

William McRaven

University of Texas (UT) System Chancellor William H. McRaven, a retired U.S. Navy four-star admiral, leads one of the nation's largest and most respected systems of higher education. As the chief executive officer of the UT System, the Chancellor oversees 14 institutions that educate 217,000 students and employ 20,000 faculty and more than 70,000 health care professionals, researchers and staff.

Since he became chancellor in January 2015, McRaven has recommitted the UT System and its institutions to improving the lives of Texans and people all over the world through education, research and health care.

Prior to becoming chancellor, McRaven was the commander of U.S. Special Operations Command, during which time he led a force of 69,000 men and women and was responsible for conducting counter-terrorism operations worldwide. McRaven also is a recognized national authority on U.S. foreign policy and has advised Presidents George W. Bush and Barack Obama and other U.S. leaders on defense issues. His book, Spec Ops: Case Studies in Special Operations Warfare: Theory and Practice, published in several languages, is considered a fundamental text on special operations strategy.

McRaven's military legacy goes beyond strategy and warfare. As commander of U.S. Special Operations Command, McRaven spearheaded the creation of the Preservation of the Force & Family initiative to ensure the mental, spiritual and physical well-being of those who serve, as well as their families.

McRaven graduated from the University of Texas at Austin in 1977 with a degree in journalism and received his master's degree from the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey in 1991. In 2012, the Texas Exes honored McRaven with a Distinguished Alumnus Award.

Susan Raufer

Susan Raufer is director of the Newark Asylum Office of U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) in the U.S. Department of Homeland Security. The Asylum Division offers protection in accordance with U.S. law and international obligations for those who come to the United States because they have been persecuted, or fear they will be persecuted, on account of their race, religion, nationality, membership in a particular social group or political opinion. Raufer's office in Newark, NJ has jurisdiction over the Northeastern United States, from Delaware through New England, excluding parts of New York that are the jurisdiction of a separate office. She became director of the office—then an office in the former Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) in the Department of Justice—in September 1999.

Raufer began her career with the U.S. government in 1994 as an asylum officer, serving in the same office which she now leads. She became a supervisory asylum officer in 1996 and deputy director in 1998. During her tenure, the Newark Asylum Office has adjudicated thousands of asylum applications and responded to international crises that resulted in the migration of asylum-seekers to the United States, including the recent influx of women and unaccompanied minors from Central America arriving at the Southwest Border. She also has participated in processing refugees from the Bosnian Crisis in Croatia; Project Provide Refuge for Kosovar refugees at Fort Dix, NJ; refugees from Myanmar; refugee survivors of the genocide in Rwanda and processing Central American minors in El Salvador. She has assisted in coordinating and conducting national training for refugee, asylum and international operations officers, and served as a U.S. Asylum Corps advisor to the Government of Israel.

NATIONAL PUBLIC SERVICE AWARDS

Prior to joining the INS, Raufer worked for 13 years for Lutheran Social Ministries of New Jersey. She initially was responsible for the resettlement of refugees through church or agency sponsorship. There, she co-founded the immigration program for the agency, a New Jersey affiliate of Lutheran Immigration and Refugee Services. She became the program's first accredited representative prior to returning to Rutgers University School of Law to obtain her J.D. in 1994. She has written an article on in-country processing of refugees that appeared in the Georgetown Immigration Law Journal.

Raufer began her career as an English teacher for Save the Children Foundation in a refugee camp in Phanat Nikhom, Thailand, teaching English to Cambodian, Laotian and Vietnamese refugees bound for resettlement in the United States. She has an undergraduate degree from the School for International Training in Brattleboro, VT. She is enrolled in a certificate program in international migration studies at Georgetown University.

Mark Welsh

General Mark A. Welsh, III became dean of the Bush School of Government and Public Service at Texas A&M University on Aug. 15, 2016 after a 40-year career in the U.S. Air Force. Welsh, who was born in San Antonio, Texas, earned a BS from the U.S. Air Force Academy, an MS in computer resource management from Webster University and graduated from the Army Command and General Staff College, the Air War College and the National War College. He was a fellow of Seminar XXI at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, a fellow of the National Security Studies Program of Syracuse University and Johns Hopkins University, a fellow of Ukrainian Security Studies at the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University, a fellow of the Pinnacle Course of the National Defense University and a graduate of the General Manager Program at the Harvard Business School. During his long military career, he received numerous awards and decorations, including multiple awards of the Defense Distinguished Service Medal, Distinguished Service Medal and the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Welsh became the 20th Chief of Staff of the Air Force in August 2012, responsible for the organization, training and equipping of 664,000 active-duty, Guard, Reserve and civilian forces serving in the United States and overseas. As a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, he and other service chiefs functioned as military advisers to the Secretary of Defense, National Security Council and the President. During his Air Force career, he also served as commander of U.S. Air Forces in Europe and Africa, commander of NATO's Air Command, associate director of military affairs at the Central Intelligence Agency and Commandant of the United States Air Force Academy.

This award is presented to the author or co-author of the best paper published in 2017 supporting the Section's mission in a field-related journal.

Service Award

The service award is given annually to a Section and/or ASPA community member who engages in service supporting the Section's mission. Nominees should be nominated by a current Section member.

Visionary Award

This award recognizes the unique characteristics of an individual to envision a future that would be diverse, inclusive and equitable. True visionaries are not part of the herd and their solutions are not always popular. They stand out with their strong beliefs and hold steadfast to their guiding principles, even in the face of adversity. They are ahead of their time.

Section for Women in Public Administration (SWPA)

Joan Fiss Bishop Leadership Award

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an honoree who, by example and action, has promoted increased participation of women in the public service profession; exhibited a defined contribution to increased involvement in the public sector; shown innovative leadership and accomplished professionalism in their public service career; and made a commitment to the profession through current or past ASPA membership.

Julia J. Henderson International Award

Originally established in 2007, the award recognizes an honoree for demonstrated commitment to international public administration, in particular, or to international public service in general by a lifetime of public service; or to careers in international public administration and public service. The honoree is not required to be an ASPA or SWPA member.

Marcia P. "Marcy" Crowley Service to SWPA Award

Originally established in 1991 and rededicated in 2007, the award recognizes an honoree for outstanding service to SWPA, service to the Section for several years and for making a demonstrated impact on its work. The honoree must be a current Section member in good standing to receive the award.

SECTION AWARDS

Rita Mae Kelly Distinguished Research Award

Originally established in 1991, the award recognizes an honoree for research contributions to gender-related issues; performing research on an issue(s) significant to women's role in public administration; and making an impact through research on women's lives. The honoree is not required to be an ASPA or SWPA member.

Section on Chinese Public Administration (SCPA)

Marc Holzer Best Article Award

This award was established to honor Marc Holzer's longstanding and excellent contributions to the Section and its journal, Chinese Public Administration Review (CPAR), as well as the memorandum of understanding between ASPA and the Chinese Public Administration Society that demonstrates collaboration between these two organizations at many Sino-U.S. public administration conferences. The award is presented annually to the best scholarly paper in CPAR. Winners receive a cash prize courtesy of SCPA at the ASPA Annual Conference and are announced in CPAR.

Ph.D. Student Best Paper Award

This award was established to recognize Ph.D. students who perform high quality research related to Chinese public administration. Only ASPA and SCPA student members may be nominated. Winners receive an award certificate with a cash prize courtesy of SCPA at the ASPA annual conference.

Section on Emergency and Crisis Management (SECM)

Dissertation Award

This award supports dissertation research in emergency and crisis management being performed by Ph.D. candidates who have successfully defended their proposal but do not have a completed dissertation.

William Petak Award

This award recognizes the outstanding paper in emergency and crisis management.

Section on Ethics and Integrity in Governance (SEIGOV)

Ethics in Action Award

This award recognizes the achievements of a dedicated public servant whose career has been characterized by exemplary efforts to uphold legal and ethical standards locally, nationally or internationally; courage against corruption or wrongdoing by officeholders; and mentorship of public servants and young academics seeking to further high ethical standards in service to the public. The award is presented annually at the Section's business meeting.

Lifetime Achievement Award

This award recognizes SEIGOV members whose extraordinary contributions to the furtherance of the Section's goals throughout their careers merit special acknowledgment. The award may recognize more than one individual annually and is presented during the Section's business meeting.

Student Paper of the Year Award

Annually, SEIGOV invites students in public affairs and public policy graduate programs to submit, or for faculty to nominate, research papers authored during the previous year on any public and administrative ethics topic. Submissions are peer reviewed and judged for their quality, methodology, importance and policy implications, as well as clarity in writing. The winning submission is announced in media publications and its author is awarded a monetary prize, financial support to attend the ASPA Annual Conference and a certificate of recognition presented during the ASPA Annual Conference.

Section on Environmental and Natural Resources (SENRA)

Student Essay Award

This annual award recognizes the best paper on the topic of environment authored by a graduate student.

SECTION AWARDS

Section on Intergovernmental Administration and Management (SIAM)

Donald C. Stone Best Student Paper Award

This award recognizes an exceptional student research paper on a question related to intergovernmental relations and management. The award is accompanied by a $250 award to assist the winner with ASPA Annual Conference attendance.

Donald C. Stone Practitioner Award

This award recognizes significant contributions to the practice of intergovernmental relations and management over a substantial period of time.

Donald C. Stone Scholar Award

This award recognizes significant contributions to the study of intergovernmental relations over a substantial period of time.

Section on International and Comparative Administration (SICA)

Col Award for Outstanding SICA Leadership

This award is offered to SICA members who have demonstrated strong commitment and active leadership contributions to SICA's mission. It is named after Jeanne-Marie Col and is presented annually at the Section's business meeting.

Fred Riggs Award for Outstanding Researcher

This award recognizes those who have made significant substantial and widely recognized contributions to the conceptual, theoretical or operational development of international, comparative or development administration. It is named in honor of Fred Riggs, a pioneer in these fields and a founder of the Section.

Garcia-Zamor Best Paper Award

This award recognizes the author of the best paper presented at the International Riggs Symposium. It is named after Professor Jean-Claude Garcia-Zamor, a long-time SICA member.

Section on Personnel Administration and Labor Relations (SPALR)

Book Award

This award recognizes an outstanding book in the field of public human resources management published between 2015 and 2017.

Dissertation Award

This award recognizes dissertation research performed by Ph.D. candidates in public/nonprofit human resources management. It supports research that is in progress, as opposed to a completed dissertation.

Outstanding Practitioner Award

This award recognizes human resources management practitioners who have made an outstanding contribution to an organization or organizations throughout their career in public service.

Outstanding Scholar Award

This award recognizes individuals who have demonstrated an exemplary record of research, teaching and service in public human resources management.

Section on Professional and Organizational Development (SPOD)

Student Scholarships

These awards are designed to help facilitate learning to advance students' academic work around finding solutions to public organizational challenges, as well as to introduce students to the Section's work and encourage their long-term involvement in it.

Section on Public Administration Research (SPAR)

Best Book Award

This award recognizes a book that significantly contributes to public administration research.

Section on Public Performance and Management (SPPM)

Governor L. Douglas Wilder

L. Douglas Wilder's career in public service spans 40 years and is noted for several historic milestones.

Wilder became the first African-American to be elected governor in the United States, leading the Commonwealth of Virginia from 1990 to 1994. As the Commonwealth's 66th governor, he was commended for his sound fiscal management and balancing the state budget during difficult economic times. Financial World magazine ranked Virginia as the best managed state for two consecutive years under his administration. Prior to his time as governor, he served as lieutenant governor from 1986-1990 and as state senator from 1969-1985, chairing committees on Transportation; Rehabilitation and Social Services; Privileges and Elections; the Virginia Advisory Legislative Council; and the Senate Steering Committee, which appoints committee members.

Wilder's other legislative achievements include providing state health care coverage for sickle-cell anemia patients, toughening penalties for capital murderers and prison escapees and expanding low and moderate income housing. For eight years, he persisted in sponsoring legislation that eventually led to establishing a state holiday honoring Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. making Virginia the first state in the nation to have a legislative holiday for Dr. King.

Persuaded to run for mayor of Richmond in 2004, Wilder received 80 percent of the vote and carried each of the city's nine council districts and every precinct in the city. He was sworn in as Richmond's first elected mayor in 2005 and served until 2009, making him the first African-American mayor elected by popular vote from all of the citizens of Richmond. During his term, Richmond made remarkable progress in its fight against crime, having its lowest rate in 27 years. Downtown economic development and neighborhood improvements were widespread and financial management reached a new level of scrutiny that served taxpayers well.

Wilder graduated from Howard University Law School in 1959 and later established the legal firm that became known as Wilder, Gregory & Associates, one of the few minority-owned businesses in Virginia at the time. Prior to earning his J.D., he graduated from Virginia Union University with a BS degree in chemistry and worked in the Office of the Chief Medical Examiner as a toxicology technician.

Wilder remains a highly involved and highly dedicated citizen of the city he has called home for most of his life, and is one of its best and most outspoken ambassadors.

Brenda Allen is vice chancellor for diversity and inclusion at the University of Colorado Denver—Anschutz Medical Campus. She also serves as professor of communication. Her scholarship focuses on organizational communication and diversity.

Allen has received numerous forms of recognition, including the first Annual Award for Outstanding Achievement for Commitment to Diversity at University of Colorado Denver; a women in leadership and management award named in honor of Wilma J. Webb, former legislator and Denver's first African-American first lady; the first Annual Ally of the Year Award from the GLBT Alliance at CU Boulder; and the Elizabeth Gee Award from the University of Colorado system, which honors an outstanding faculty member for efforts to advance women in academia, interdisciplinary scholarly contributions and distinguished teaching.

Allen was recruited from Howard University to the University of Colorado Boulder (CU Boulder) in 1989 as an assistant professor. Since that time, she has been promoted to professor and served as department chair and associate dean.

Allen assumed her role as chief diversity officer in August 2012. Among her publications is a groundbreaking book, Difference Matters: Communicating Social Identity.

Research That Matters

The Schar School of Policy and Government at George Mason University brings together faculty who seek to push the frontiers of conventional wisdom, apply rigorous policy and administrative analysis to complex issues, and make connections to real-world decision makers and thought leaders in public service.

Located at the doorstep of the nation's capital, the Schar School prepares graduate and undergraduate students for careers in federal, state, and local government as well as private consulting firms and nonprofit organizations.

The Schar School is proud of our following accomplishments:

- Organizer for the NAPA/ASPA Memos to National Leaders (2016)
- Partner of the Washington Post on Virginia Politics Polls (2017)
- Host of the Symposium on Prioritizing Governance for Resilient Critical Infrastructure (2017)
- Home of the Virginia Certified Public Manager® Program

Congratulations, Governor Wilder!

The VCU Wilder School is proud to be named for L. Douglas Wilder, 66th governor of Virginia, distinguished professor of public policy, and recipient of the 2017 ASPA Gloria Hobson Nordin Social Equity Award.

Governor Wilder's career in public service exemplifies a lifelong commitment to social equity. His numerous legislative accomplishments include expanding health care, affordable housing and public education, and as governor he was commended nationally for his sound fiscal management.

His many milestones include:

- First African-American elected governor in the United States
- Virginia's first African-American elected lieutenant governor
- First African-American to serve in the Virginia Senate since Reconstruction
- First popularly elected mayor of the city of Richmond—his hometown—in nearly a half-century.

We salute you, Governor Wilder!

Support the legacy of Dr. Marc Holzer

Marc Holzer dedicated his illustrious career to preparing the next generation of public administration academics and practitioners to lead efficiently and effectively.

You can support his legacy by giving to the Marc Holzer Fund for Doctoral Students.

Marc Holzer Fund for Doctoral Students at Rutgers SPAA

Marc Holzer was the Founding Dean of the School of Public Affairs and Administration (SPAA) at Rutgers University–Newark, where he served as such from 2006-2016. In his honor, the Marc Holzer Fund provides merit-based financial assistance to SPAA public administration doctoral students who demonstrate a scholarly interest in public performance.

Thank you for helping to continue Marc's work.
